Study Design & Management

- How did you develop the expertise in providing consultancy in study designs for national studies?
- What are important aspects that need to be considered?

- Since when does IEA Hamburg have experience in managing studies?
- What tasks are involved in this and how can countries benefit from this experience?

Svenja Bundt
Deputy Director IEA Hamburg

Sampling

- Can you briefly tell us, since when does IEA has a Sampling Unit?
- What are your references?
- What can you offer to countries?

Dr. Sabine Meinck
Head of the Sampling Unit
Co-Head of Research and Analysis Unit

IEA's Research Services

- What tasks do you have in the Coding Unit and which expertise did you develop?
- How did it happen that you first gathered your experience in the national contexts, but then offered it at some point to countries internationally?
- Why do you think is your offer attractive to some countries internationally?

Data Entry, Processing, and Coding

Guido Martin
Head of the Coding Unit

IEA's Research Services

Dr. Rolf Strietholt
Co-Head of Research & Analysis Unit

- Your unit has a wide range of expertise. What can you offer countries that would be interested in getting support for data analysis?
- You have a new established scaling team? Could you please explain briefly, how did this happen, what tasks this team typically has and what is the expertise that can be provided?
- Another important aspect is reporting these results. Why do you think, this is an important expertise and how can you offer support to countries?

Data Analysis & Reporting

IEA's Research Services

Dr. Sabine Meinck
Co-Head of Research and Analysis Unit
Head of the Sampling Unit

- The IEA has a long tradition in offering trainings to countries to build up capacities within the countries to work with IEA data. First of all, how many workshops do you conduct usually per year and what are typical occasions?
- Could you please introduce us to your wide-ranging workshop portfolio?
